

Every Cub Scout Pack is strongly encouraged to provide 1 Den Walker for every 5 Scouts attending Day Camp.

Here is a description of the Den Walker's roles:

Attendance is an important part of camp. Not only is there a check-in at the beginning of the camp program, as well as check-out, there is also den attendance to be taken. Head counts and buddy checks should be made often, especially when moving onto a new location for the next activity.

All leaders will set up a "buddy system" for their dens, restroom visits included.

NO BOY SHOULD LEAVE YOUR SITE WITHOUT HIS BUDDY.

Day Camp Den Walker Roles

- Greet all campers with a smile! 😊
- Take daily attendance. (Turn in "master" before the first session is started. Keep second copy with you at all times.)
- Escort the den from site to site. (Stay on time.)
- Serve as an extra set of hands for activities and games.
- Keep the den together at all times. (Use buddy system & take head counts.)
- Maintain control and reward Scout-like behavior. (Let him carry the flag and/or award beads.)
Calmly report problems to headquarters quietly and promptly.
- Build den spirit. (Songs, yells, etc.)
- Encourage drinking water between every session.
- If first aid is needed, escort to the First Aid Station only after the rest of the den has been turned over to another responsible adult.

How can a Den Walker set a good example?

- Be on time.
- Wear your camp t-shirt every day.
- Be a good sport.
- Be prepared for everything, even the unexpected.
- Smile A LOT!!! Even if it hurts 😊
